

Cruz Armando González Izaguirre

Women's Right to the City

The Family as a Dispositive in Urban Settlements in Mexico

Nomos

Studien zu Lateinamerika
Latin America Studies

edited by

Prof. Dr. Manuela Boatcă, University of Freiburg

Prof. Dr. Hans-Jürgen Burchardt, University of Kassel

Prof. Dr. Olaf Kaltmeier, Bielefeld University

Prof. Dr. Anika Oettler, Philipps University of Marburg

Prof. Dr. Stefan Peters, Justus Liebig University of Giessen

Prof. Dr. Stephanie Schütze, Free University of Berlin

Volume 36

Cruz Armando González Izaguirre

Women's Right to the City

The Family as a Dispositive in Urban Settlements in Mexico

Nomos

© Cover illustration: www.pinterest.de: Artist: Joaquin Torres Garcia (Montevideo, Uruguay, 1874–1949); Title: América Invertida, 1943.

The Deutsche Nationalbibliothek lists this publication in the Deutsche Nationalbibliografie; detailed bibliographic data are available on the Internet at <http://dnb.d-nb.de>

a.t.: Bielefeld, Univ., Diss., 2019

Original title: “Struggling for a piece of land for the family:” Women’s subjectivation and spatial practices in the regularization process of urban settlements in Sinaloa, Mexico from the political reform to the lost decade (1976–1988)

ISBN 978-3-8487-6297-2 (Print)
978-3-7489-0404-5 (ePDF)

British Library Cataloguing-in-Publication Data

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

ISBN 978-3-8487-6297-2 (Print)
978-3-7489-0404-5 (ePDF)

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

González Izaguirre, Cruz Armando
Women’s Right to the City
The Family as a Dispositive in Urban Settlements in Mexico
Cruz Armando González Izaguirre
387 pp.
Includes bibliographic references.

ISBN 978-3-8487-6297-2 (Print)
978-3-7489-0404-5 (ePDF)

1st Edition 2019

© Nomos Verlagsgesellschaft, Baden-Baden, Germany 2019. Printed and bound in Germany.

This work is subject to copyright. All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopying, recording, or any information storage or retrieval system, without prior permission in writing from the publishers. Under § 54 of the German Copyright Law where copies are made for other than private use a fee is payable to “Verwertungsgesellschaft Wort”, Munich.

No responsibility for loss caused to any individual or organization acting on or refraining from action as a result of the material in this publication can be accepted by Nomos or the author.

Acknowledgements

It is a pleasure to thank the many individuals who made this thesis possible. I would like to express my very great appreciation to Prof. Dr. Olaf Kaltmeier, my primary supervisor, for his valuable and constructive suggestions, comments, and guidance during the planning and development of this work. His willingness to lend his time and support so generously has been very much appreciated. This thesis would not have been possible without his valuable advice and unwavering trust in my work and abilities, even when I hesitated to complete the dissertation. I also appreciate his decision to accept me as a doctoral student as it has been a turning point in my career and on a personal level. I would also like to express my deep gratitude to my second supervisor, Prof. Dr. Tomke König, for her patient guidance, enthusiastic encouragement, and useful critiques of this research work. I'm extremely grateful to her because without her motivation, support, and continuous optimism for this work, this study would hardly have been completed.

I would like to thank all of the interviewees who opened up their homes, memories, and deep personal experiences to me. Their trust and collaboration have made this study possible. I hope that the results provided by this study repay their trust and expose an authentic perspective of their voices and interpretations.

Special thanks are given to Jun. Prof. Dr. Eleonora Rohland for accepting to take part in the final evaluation of my research. I want also to express my gratitude to Nora Wallenius who revised and proofread the manuscript of the dissertation during its many stages. Her professionalism and insightful contributions helped me expand my writing skills and substantially improved the quality of the final document. My special thanks are extended to the technical and academic staff of the BGHS, particularly Dr. Sabine Schäfer, Dr. Bettina Brandt, and Dr. Miriam Kanne for their help and guidance in completing the academic requirements of the doctoral program. I would like to thank my fellow doctoral students for their feedback, cooperation, and, of course, friendship. I want to express my deepest gratitude to Clarita Gläve and Alex Mossena who welcomed me to their office and were my first and most important support in the difficult and fascinating transition from living in Mexico to beginning my doctoral studies in Germany. In addition, I would like to express my gratitude to the staff of the Center for InterAmerican Studies and particularly to Yaatsil Guevara, Mirko Petersen, and Marius Littschwager for their support and friendship.

Acknowledgements

I would like to thank my friends who kept me on track when I hesitated about my skills and my work, who cheered me on when I was down, and who helped me enjoy an amazing time in Bielefeld. I am deeply grateful to Cathe, Susana, Fanny, Flora, Laura, Geyner, Juan, and Charlotte (and now la pequeña Olivia). I really appreciate the conversations and good times with Camilo, Tomás “Tommy Boy,” Carlos, Isaac, and Simão, o Capitão of our soccer team. Thanks should also go to all the members of my soccer team for the great times we had and also for tolerating my occasional bad moods with a lot of patience. I would like to express my very great appreciation to Mapita for her fascination and curiosity about the conditions that render us humans and her kind-hearted way of being.

Turning to Mexico, I am deeply grateful to Martín Velázquez for his unconditional support. Without his continuous backing in every situation we faced together, I would have not finished this project. His friendship became my strong bond to Mexico during my doctoral studies. My heartfelt appreciation goes to mis carnales David, Oscar, Rafa, and Nancy and to los Peralta, Neto, Pris, and Jogio. All of them became my family despite the physical distance. I am deeply grateful to Aminta because she was the first example of perseverance against adversity that I admired. I would also like to extend my deepest gratitude to Talía for believing in me and my abilities.

I owe a very important debt to my primo José Luis, my strongest link to my father’s family, and his understanding and support in a very difficult situation. I would like to express my gratitude to mi tía Chacha, my forever encouraging and always enthusiastic emotional support during my childhood. She was a maternal figure to me in so many ways. I would like to thank Olivia, my mother, for all her hard work in raising me alone during my childhood years. I want to thank Armando, my father, for the help he offered me in different crucial moments.

And lastly, but by no means least, a very special gratitude goes out to CONACYT, Mexico’s National Council of Science and Technology (Consejo Nacional de Ciencia y Tecnología), the Autonomous University of Sinaloa, Mexico, the DAAD final degree Scholarship for International Doctoral Candidates (STIBET), and Bielefeld University for providing the funding for this work.

Content

Introduction: tracking an intermittent presence within a shifting trajectory	11
1 Theoretical framework	49
1.1 Linking heterogeneous elements: The family as a dispositive	49
1.2 Tracking trajectories: the constant act of becoming	58
1.2.1 Subject position: an unstable point within a trajectory	62
1.3 Gender relations within the settlements: creating liminal spaces	64
1.4 The spatial dimension of becoming	71
1.4.1 Spatial practices: ordering chaos and struggling for the family	74
1.4.2 Representations of space	76
1.4.3 Representational space or space of representation	79
1.5 Methodology: Raising and lowering voices: voices that surfaced and voices that decided to remain silent	82
2 Literature review	95
2.1 Second, self-help	103
2.2 The turn to the dependency theory	108
2.3 Orthodox Marxism	121
2.4 Feminist reflections on women's involvement	127
2.5 The rise of neoliberalism	138
2.6 Preliminary summary	145
3 Accessings the settlement	148
3.1 Opposing authorities	152
3.1.1 "If one is in need, one must keep going"	152
3.2 Negotiating with both left-wing groups and authorities	160
3.2.1 Cutting ties with authorities: "The colonia Rubén Jaramillo (previously Estela Ortiz de Toledo Corro)"	161

Content

3.2.2	Negotiating with authorities: when they saw that there were families with children in need of a plot, they ceded their place to a family	175
3.3	Collaborating with authorities	186
3.3.1	“Get in there and then you are going to pay when the time comes”	188
3.4	Preliminary summary	204
4	Organizing the settlement	208
4.1	Opposing authorities	209
4.1.1	“They say we are invaders”	209
4.2	Negotiating with both left-wing groups and authorities	222
4.2.1	Left-wing groups prevailed: Escaping the shack where life is keeping you	222
4.2.2	Authorities prevailed: “I have always liked to be a troublemaker”	242
4.3	Collaborating with authorities	257
4.3.1	‘Ah! Those are the women from the [colonia] Lázaro Cárdenas.’	257
4.4	Preliminary summary	270
5	Obtaining legal possession of the land	275
5.1	Opposing authorities	279
5.1.1	Los Niños Héroes (Children Heroes): producing space.	279
5.2	Negotiating with both left-wing groups and authorities	293
5.2.1	“Well, organized in that way [as a member of the UCOMAZ], it was easier for us to be noticed by authorities.”	293
5.2.2	The ballad of Estela Loredó	302
5.3	Collaborating with authorities	316
5.3.1	“I think that with forty women they will listen to me”	316
5.4	Preliminary summary	324

6	Conclusions	329
7	Bibliography	357
7.1	Hemerography	383
7.2	Archives	386

