Acknowledgements

This book was developed in the context of the international conference “South Korea after the 2017 Impeachment: Implications for Democratic Consolidation” conducted at TU Dortmund University in November 2019. For both to be made possible and successful, I am greatly indebted to several people and institutions. First and foremost, I would like to extend my gratitude towards the Faculty of Humanities and Theology of TU Dortmund University and particularly to Prof. Christoph Schuck, Professor of Political Science and Dean of the Faculty, for awarding to me the extraordinary opportunity to organize a conference and subsequently publish a book on a topic from the very core of my research interests. I would also like to thank Prof. Christian Neuhäuser, Professor of Political Philosophy, for taking the time to officially open the conference and extending a welcome address to the participants. Many thanks also go to the participants of the conference for their contribution to the success of the conference as well as the subsequent book project. The academic exchange in this context proved to be very fruitful and inspiring and was very much appreciated on my part. Specifically regarding the book project, I would also like to thank the reviewers of this book for their valuable comments and suggestions on the individual chapters, as well as the editors of the book series, Prof. Christoph Schuck and Matthias Heise, for extending to me the much-appreciated opportunity of joining their series with this book. Last, but definitely not least, my heartfelt thanks go to Rika Althoff and Karin König for their great organizational support during the conference, to Rika Althoff for her attentive proofreading of the entire book, to the faculty staff, particularly Maria Möllenberg-Hemker and Julia Pferdekämper, for their support and advice with the preparation and administrative processing of the conference, to Nomos, specifically Beate Bernstein and Eduard Schwarzenberger, for their editorial support throughout the publication process, and to all my colleagues at the Department of Philosophy and Political Science for their ongoing support and advice during this project and for letting me benefit from their experience and knowledge. Without the support of all the above-mentioned, the publication of this book would not have been possible.
